ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

The educational policies of the schools of this country have materially changed since the last annual report. The schools as one of the institutions making up our complex social structure have had a considerable part in our war economy. The various drives conducted during the past year have found ready and willing participants in the schools. Teachers and pupils both have contributed of their time to make contributions to the war effort. It is not with any idea of complaint but rather as a statement of fact that any mention of these activities is made. The essential functions of the school are being met with some necessary adjustments. The problem facing the schools is to make as few curtailments of essential services and at the same time to contribute as fully as possible to the winning of the war.

The schools of Auburn have and are continuing to sell war stamps to pupils. The teachers have served on registration in the rationing programs. The pupils have collected materials for salvage and have been very cooperative in all campaigns to promote the war effort.

These activities have affected the schools in two ways. They have necessarily taken time in some cases (registrations) from the regular school day. In some cases they have meant the expenditure of energy and time which ordinarily would be used for preparation of school work.

Despite these handicaps the work of the schools is continuing as in past years. With the experienced staff of teachers who are fully acquainted with the pupils, the educational opportunities offered the pupils of Auburn schools are being increased in line with the established policy of furnishing adequate text books to the schools.

The schools are fortunate that the services of Misses Barrett, Jamrog, and Valeska and Mrs. Harris have been continued. One of the handicaps which ordinarily interfere with the progress of pupils in school is the teacher turnover. This handicap is over come when teachers are retained over several years.

In addition to the regular repairs the Severance School was painted in accord with the vote of the district meeting. The appearance and physical worth of the building has been greatly improved.

BUDGET

The proposed estimate for 1943-44 shows an increase in expenditures with a larger increase in tax levy. The items which cause the increase in appropriation are all those in which services play a part. Increased cost of books, supplies, and fuel are passed on to the consumer in this case the schools. The only other item which shows an increase is insurance. The expiration of both school policies in the same year results in a large increase in the appropriation. Some study of the practicality of having the policies come due in successive years will have a tendency to level the insurance cost so that no one year will have to bear the entire insurance costs. These factors are the ones which make the increased appropriation necessary. There is however a factor which may alleviate this increase somewhat. There is a possibility that a portion of the increased cost will be borne by increased state aid to the town.

The larger increase occurs in the tax levy. This increase is due to two factors. The increased budget and the lowering of the cash on hand are responsible for the increase in the tax levy.

The citizens of Auburn have reason to be proud of their schools. The pupils are appreciative of the educational opportunities offered and cooperate with the town and school officials. The teachers are diligent in their efforts to improve each pupils level of accomplishment. The buildings are well maintained. Pupils, teachers and school board invite you most cordially to become better acquainted with your schools and the work they are doing.

I appreciate the fine cooperation I have been accorded in my work in Auburn. Pupils, parents, teachers and school board members have all been most cooperative. It will be my earnest endeavor to continue to merit this fine cooperation and promote the educational welfare of all the pupils of the town.

Respectfully submitted,

EVERTON H. PARKINSON,
Superintendent of Schools.
